On Getting Help for Choosing Business Gifts

Innovative gifts for your inspiration.

Advertising is important to promoting your business, and is most effective when you do it with a memorable gift. The most common time to give your customers a gift is New Year, during a festival time or a national event. By giving your existing customers a memorable gift you will be able to win their loyalty and a continued customer relationship. Not all gifts will work across different customer bases. Choosing an appropriate gift is an art in itself. This ensure that you will always find the ideal product to deliver your message, taking your marketing, advertising or promotions to the next level.

Screen printing (ST)

Can be used only on flat surfaces on most garments. The design is placed on the gauze in the screen print frame. The gauze has a light sensitive layer. A film of the design is placed on the gauze and the entire surface is exposed to UV light. The printing ink is pressed through the gauze on to the garment enabling the image to be printed. Screen printing is used primarily on clothes and nylon products. A quick and popular solution for printing logos and advertising messages and is ideal for larger print requirements.

Embroidery (E)

A technique in which logo is embroidered on a item. The price for embroidery depends on the number of stitches and the size of the logo. The maximum number of colours that can be used is 15. An embroidery card is needed to reproduce the image on the item. Large fully embroidered areas of the use of gold or silver thread is more expensive.

Transfer screen (TT)

Through the use of screen printing the design is printed on a paper carrier. A heat transfer press is then used to print the image on the item. This technique is suitable primarily if multiple colours are being used for textile products. With transfers it is also possible to print fine details on coarse types of textiles. A sophisticated printing solution for high quality results.

Digital transfer (DT)

With a plotter logo is printed on an adhesive plastic which at the same time is cut to the desired shape. It is transferred via a heat press on the textile. Shapes made in different cuts and complexity in the cutting and the peeling which may result in higher costs.

Digital printing (DPT)

Your logo will be digitally printed directly onto the item. The artworks will always be printed in full colour and the details can be extremely high. From simple text to high definition pictures. All is possible. Printing is done with a great accuracy, making it suitable for multiple colour printing.
